

walk three

south common stride

From South Park, facing the common, turn left and walk to the end of the road. Start to walk up Canwick Hill on the pedestrian path. Follow the path to the right onto the ridge taking care of the loose stones and rocks. Weathering may expose tree roots along the ridge - step out carefully. From the ridge three different sets of wooden steps lead back to the lower part of the common. These can be used to shorten the walk back to South Park. This lower part is popular with dog walkers.

Proceed along the ridge, taking care as it narrows in some parts, until it exits onto Cross O'Cliff Hill. Turn right at the end and walk towards the city centre. There are a number of gates and paths on your right that lead back to South Common from Cross O'Cliff Hill that can shorten the walk. There are also several benches along here. At the roundabout turn right. The pavement here divides into a pedestrian and cycle path, so be aware of cyclists! Follow this path to the right and this brings you back to South Park.
